

City Theatrical Blog

PLASA London 2022: Colleagues, Cool Tech, and Cookies

Sep 20, 2022, 01:34 AM by Al Crawford Leave a comment

City Theatrical General Manager Al Crawford on PLASA Show 2022 in London, United Kingdom.

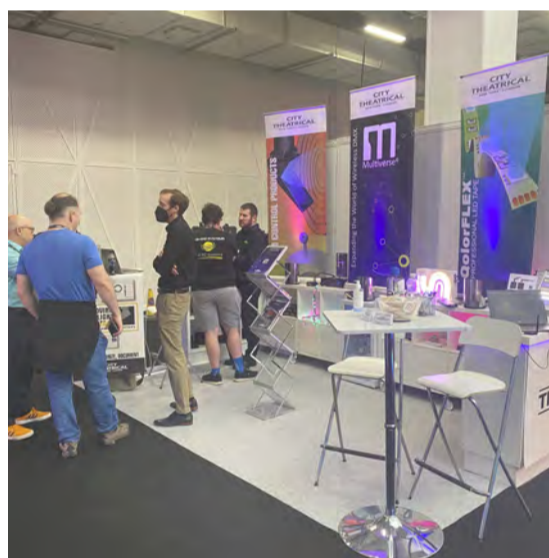

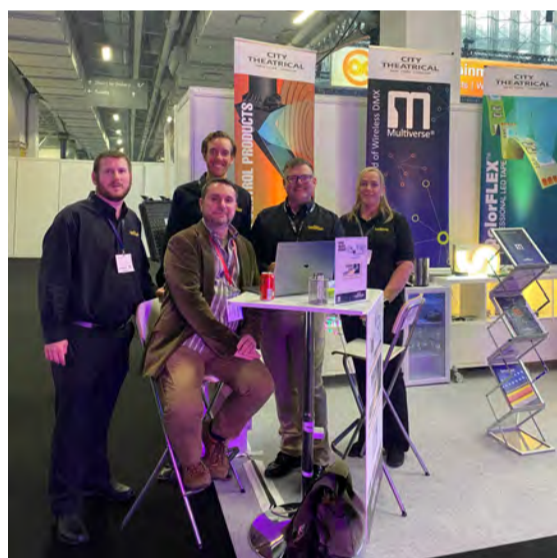

We have just returned to our New Jersey headquarters from PLASA Show 2022 at Kensington Olympia in London, UK, which was September 4 - 6, 2022.

What a great show it was!

We got to see old friends and colleagues, make new ones, and spend time with our City Theatrical Ltd. team members from the London office, including Matt Stearnes, Serena McDonald, and Kelly Porteous. We were also joined this year by Andrew Voller, UK-based lighting designer and the founder of Moving Light Assistant™ software, as well as our sales manager Harrison Hohnholt. We had a blast!

It was also great to meet so many of our European Dealers face to face, many of whom I hadn't seen in person since trade shows before the pandemic, now three years ago.

We also had City Theatrical Multiverse-themed cookies on our stand this year, and they proved to be a crowd pleaser!

A Fantastic Buzz, Full of New Technology

PLASA Show 2022 in London was bustling with people from all different aspects of lighting, design to manufacturing, with entertainment to architectural focus and beyond, from students to CEOs. There was a fantastic buzz around the exhibition center with so much new technology out on show for all to explore.

PLASA London, you did not disappoint! See you again next year.

Want to learn more?

Read more about our presentation at PLASA Show 2022 in ETNow.