"The songs in The Wanderer may be oldies, but the stagecraft and design are anything but. Beowulf Boritt's beautiful set design doesn't include a single static piece of scenery, so with everything tracking and spinning around the whole show, the lighting design had to keep up. The MAC Aura Top Hats were one of our favorite accessories which let the front-of-house Auras do their job without distracting the audience with flare on the house walls. The set also included a wide array of low-voltage set electrics, much of which was powered by City Theatrical gear. These play a large role in the design, making the windows and signage of the Bronx glow with life and making the musical numbers pop with QolorFLEX NuNeon."
