Paul Whitty in The Great Gatsby (Matthew Murphy and Evan Zimmerman)

"From a design standpoint, our first goal was to deliver a Great Gatsby that meets or exceeds audience expectations. That means something that feels decadent, opulent, and extravagant. The story covers heavy topics related to capitalism, class mobility, obsession, and the American dream, but visually...we know the audience craves spectacle and we've tried to deliver that. The colors are bold, the contrast is deep, and the various worlds materialize in front of your eyes like magic. Through meticulous video, scenic, and lighting integration we are able to create eye-popping visuals and transitions that hopefully live up to Gatsby's reputation as a party you have to experience firsthand."
